CHICAGO, TUESDAY, AUGUST 21, 1900.

PRICE, 5 CENTS

AT HAWTHORNE AGAIN.

After a two week's let-up racing was resumed at Hawthorne yesterday and as an opening attraction was presented the Olympia Stakes. Those who journeyed to the handsome Cicero course expecting to find the track a mass of sticky mud were agreeably surprised to see dust flying when the horses were warming up for the first race.

The crowd in attendance was a large one, but somewhat smaller than was expected, but book-makers, despite the rumor that they were going to bolt if the price for "drawing in" was not reduced, were on hand in full force, twenty-eight regular knights of the chalk taking their places for three days. Besides these twenty-eight regular odds layers there were two field books and a combination.

There was but one close finish, and in fact hardly anything sensational from a spectacular standpoint took place. The only feature that caused comment after the day was over was the scarcity of winning favorites, but one of the talent's selections survived and that was P. Dunne's Silurian.

The field in the stake race, which was at one mile, was quite evenly balanced and consequently a liberal price was offered against any one of the eight starters. Eva Rice was the choice at the close of the betting at 2 to 1, while all the way from 4 to 1 up to 10 to 1 could be had against any of the others and each was heavily backed.

The race being at one mile of necessity led to the horses being started from directly in front of the stand and when starter Holtman made his appearance "on his perch," he was given a royal reception. His work has won for him many friends among the race-going people and he is perhaps more popular with the crowds than is Mr. Dwyer, but the race-going public is a hard one to please and if Mr. Holtman should happen to make a few bad starts he would probably drop out of favoritism quicker than he jumped in.

The start in the Olympia Stakes was a beauty the field of eight going away closely bunched. On the first turn, however, there was a terrific jam everyone but The Unknown and The Lady being badly interfered with. In the mixup Eva Rice and Florizar, the first and second choices respectively, were almost thrown over the fence. After this the race was always between The Unknown and The Lady, with the exception of an instant down the backstretch when Eva Rice bobbed up in second place. The early effort this mare made told on her sharply, however, and her bid was soon smothered by the leaders. At the head of the stretch The Unknown loomed up three lengths in front and it seemed then that he was going to win away off by himself with the greatest of ease, but about the eighth post Master Tally took a notion to draw his whip, the result being the colt swerved badly, and had he not been far enough in front of the others he certainly would have committed a foul. As it was the youth made pounds the best horse win in a staggering way, where had he sat still he could have won in an impressive manner.

Form reversals will happen, but with Prince Blazes it is becoming a disease to be inconsistent. This horse was beaten by a city block the last time he started at Harlem, in the mud, but yesterday he acted like a horse that had been stimulated and, furthermore, ran such an improved race over his last one that one would hardly believe that it was the same Prince Blazes. He was always in a good position near the front and at no part of the journey did any horse have a certainty of out-sprinting him. Macy and Hub Prather both straightened away for home in front of the Prince but he displayed his usual amount of gameness that he possesses when "meant" and after a terrific drive gained a nose victory over Hub Prather. Macy was a 3 to 5 shot for the race and seemed almost a certainty but he fell by the wayside and finished a distant third.

In Silurian P. Dunne has a smashing good two-year-old, and this youngster, poorly ridden by Winkfield, saved the talent from a complete shut-out. He was backed to 11 to 10 in the third race, and after suffering all kinds of bad racing luck, eventually won with great ease.

Bengal, from Jake Marklein's stable, won the opening four and a half furlong scramble for two-year-olds without an effort, and Lennep, ridden with rare judgment by Kuhn, made a fast lot of sprinters look like "thirty cents" in the second.

The third was the Silurian race, the fourth was the stake, but the fifth went to Frangible, who was heavily backed by a select few at the liberal price of 4 to 1.

Jockey Marty Bergen was set down for one week by starter Holtman for disobedience of orders at the post. Tully was also debarred from taking outside mounts for one week on the ground of incompetency.

Winkfield was fined $25 for a bad ride on The Elk.

ENGLISH RACING METHODS.

The average American racegoer has little idea of the differences which exist in the management of a race meeting in this country and of one in England. Not only are the differences in the form of the sport itself, but things are accepted as a natural accompaniment of racing in one country which would be considered gross inconveniences in the other.

So many minor differences exist, in fact, that from the beginning to the end of a racing day an American in England would find nearly everything connected with the meeting carried out in an entirely different manner from that which prevails here.

In the first place, there is no such thing in England as getting on an electric car and being carried to the track in a few minutes. If a visitor wishes to attend any of the important meetings he will find it necessary to take a train and he will be lucky if he arrives at his destination in less than three or four hours. Even Epsom Downs, where the Derby is run, is only to be reached by trains or cabs, and this last method of travel is prohibitive in price to one accustomed to paying only a few cents for transportation. It may be remarked at the outset that the question of price is the first and most important difference of the English and American racing games, a day in the former country costing about twenty times what the same period would cost here, presuming that the amount of the wagers was the same in both cases.

At important meetings like that at Ascot it is necessary to make a special trip to the town itself and spend at least one night there. This same necessity prevails in the majority of the important meetings, nearly all the chief courses being located at some little town which owes its existence entirely to the racing. Upon taking a ticket to one of these places, should the visitor wish to travel first-class, he must pay six pence a mile for his transportation, or 12 cents in American money.

The entrance fee to the course is also greater than here. While a free field exists at nearly all the meetings in Britain, it is only patronized by the lower of the three great English classes. Those who really support the racing are charged enormously for their attendance, three prices prevailing at the average track, and it is not until all three are paid that the visitor is Winner—Ch. h. by Rayon d'Or—Glory. Went to post at 1:36. At post 11 minutes. Start good. Won easily; second driving. Gala Day was easily the best. He went right to the front and was under restraint the whole way, and was eased up in the last sixteenth. Godfrey ran a good race and finished strongly, but swerved near the finish. Terrorist should have been third by a length, but was poorly managed. Excelsis was closing when he fast lost ground by swinging wide. The others did not cut any figure in the race.

Scratched—Knight of Silver, 113; 20062 Champion, 110. Gala Day, place, 3 to 10; show, out. Godfrey, place, 10 to 1; show, 4 to 1. Excelsis, place, evens; show, out.

Winner—Ch. c. by Bramble—Queen Beluga. Went to post at 2:11. At post 3 minutes. Start good. Won cleverly; second and third driving. King Bramble appeared to be best and was well ridden. Mitchell rated him all along until well into the stretch and then made his run. He was being hustled a trifle at the end, but had something left. Lord Baltimore was outrun in the first part of the race, but closed with a rush, causing interference as he did so and was set back. Kunja ran better than was expected and finished strongly. She was pinched off when going up the backstretch. Wait Not did not seem to be quite ready, but was close up all the way. Peaceful ran with his mouth open to the stretch and then quit badly. Alsike was poorly handled by Burns, who ran right into a pocket and was then shut out and this put him out of the race.

Scratched—(20097) Trillo, 117; 19785 Montanic, 102; 20059 Radford, 100. King Bramble, place, 7 to 5; show, 3 to 5. Lord Baltimore, place, 7 to 5; show, 3 to 5. Kunja, place, 25 to 1; show, 8 to 1. Wait Not, place, 4 to 5; show, out. Peaceful, place, 3 to 5; show, out.

Winner—Ch. c. by Faraday—Slipaway. Went to post at 2:50. At post 5 minutes. Start good. Won driving; second the same. Far Rockaway was doing his best all the way and only got up in the last two strides. Lady Schorr showed the most speed of the field all the way, but she tired very badly in the last few strides. Longshoreman ran a much improved race, was with Lady Schorr all the way, and fought it out to the last stride. Irritable looked big and did not run his true race. Amur showed early speed, but tired and quit.

ENGLISH RACING METHODS.

entitled to all the privileges of the grand stand, betting ring and paddock.

The entrance fee is usually one guinea, or a trifle over $5. At the lesser meetings this covers admission to the paddock and grandstand, but at the large meetings one is merely admitted for this sum into the inclosure which corresponds to the American fence surrounding the stands. In the English course a stand is provided for those who wish to make no further payment, but all those who desire to enter the paddock and Tattersall's betting ring, where the responsible bookmakers assemble, are forced to pay another guinea. Admission to the grandstand, which gives a view of the race at all points, is generally ten shillings extra, or about $2.40. Thus at a meeting similar in class to that of the best New York tracks, where the admission fee of $2 covered everything, the stranger in England would be compelled to pay over $12.

Although there are stringent laws against betting, it has been decided by English judges that when no money changes hands there is no evidence of a wager. In consequence, each bookmaker has a clientele which he knows and with whom the wagers are recorded, to be settled later. If the person is unknown to the bookmaker, the money must be turned over to the latter, who gives no receipt for it, thus avoiding any damaging evidence in the shape of a token that bets have been made. Wagers, as a rule, are settled the day following, except at meetings like Ascot, when the Monday following the week's racing is known as "Black Monday," on account of the customary squaring up necessary on that day.

Besides the bookmakers in Tattersall's inclosure, there are also ready-money bookmakers in the guinea inclosure and in the free field.
The gentry who practice the profession in the free field, however, are as a rule of a low description, giving small odds and welching when an opportunity offers.

The course has entirely different aspects from the American track on account of invariably being of turf instead of soil. Instead of being oval or elliptical in shape, as Americans are accustomed to see it, it is often irregular in form, with the starting point of races at each distance far away from the grandstand.
Steeplechasing and flat racing do not flourish on the same courses in England, nor at the same seasons, so in consequence a steeplechase course in the infield is rarely seen.

There is no stand for the starter at the various points. Instead he remains upon the ground and directs the movements of the jockeys from there. There is seldom a course fenced in for any distance and in consequence they have a more open aspect than American tracks, which are fenced in and lined with distance poles and starters' stands. On the other side only the stretch is fenced in, and this does not prevent the people from the field from swarming there during the intervals of the racing.
This crowding of a course would never be tolerated in this country.

DAILY RACING FORM is a publication which is built by its staff from day to day. Its "form" and the numbers of its charts are copyrighted.
The chart numbers are so arranged that legal identification is easy of proof. The selections graphic receipt of charts and entries. All persons are warned not to use said chart or index numbers, selections or handicap figures.

Went to post at 3:33. Off at the first break to a good start. Won driving. Gonfalon won because of his light weight and Shaw's good riding. He took the shortest route all the way and by doing so saved at least five lengths. On the other hand the Kentuckian was poorly ridden.
O'Connor had him all over the track and he must have gone at least ten lengths further than Gonfalon. O'Connor's finish was also weak. Advance Guard was outrun in the first part of the race but closed strongly and appeared like the winner in the last sixteenth but hung at the end.
Bannockburn's race was very poor. Mitchell was hard at work on him after passing the half mile post but he could not respond.

Scratched—(1995) Charatus, 113; (2078) Intrusiva, 103.
Gonfalon, place, 2 to 1. The Kentuckian, place, out. Advance Guard, place, 7 to 10. Ban-nockburn, place, 1 to 2. No show betting.

Went to post at 2:52. At post 3 minutes. Start good. Won handily; second all out. Saka-fuch wore the leaders down and came away without an effort in the run home. Jennie hung when it came to a drive and she only managed to last long enough to stall off Mound Builder's rush. The latter ran a fairly good race. Spaldy Y. lost ground at the home turn by coming wide.
Miss Fonsland was rushed out in front too fast and tired badly at the end.

Went to post at 2:15. Off at the first break to a fair start. Won easily; second, third and fourth driving to the limit. Bengal was lucky, well ridden and liked the dead going, and came away on call in the stretch. The Elk got away fully in his stride, but hung at the end and barely lasted long enough to be second. William Boyer ran away about three furlongs in his preliminary, but this did not seem to have any bad effect on him and he ran a good race. Fairy Prince was right there all the way. Neither Buchanan nor Iroma was seriously hurt in their fall.

Winner—B. m. by Candelmas—Wanton.

Went to post at 2:55. At post 9 minutes. Start good for all but La Josephine who refused to break. Won cleverly. The next three were under keen pressure. Lennep was cleverly ridden. Kuhn picked the going, avoided all interference and stole a march on the other boys on the far turn. The mare seems to be in her best form at present. Found ran a good race and hung on longer than usual. Headwater ran the best race and with clear sailing could not have lost. He got into a pocket when going down the backstretch and lost much ground on the turns. Great Bend skinned the rail when turning into the stretch and seemed dangerous at the eighth post but died away at the end. Highland Lad made a good showing. Algareta was in a pocket all the way. Hermoso ran a fast half then quit badly.

Went to post at 3:40. At post 2 minutes. Start fair. Won handily at the end after a hard early drive. Second, third and fourth were close together and driving to the limit. Silurian was the best and had to be to win. He was away poorly, had bad luck early, but came through the stretch like a stake horse. Satin Coat ran a cracking good race, making up a lot of ground from a poor beginning and hung on gamely through the stretch under pressure. Princess Tatyana broke flying and showed a lot of speed but when challenged quit badly. Woodstick finished with a tremendous rush and would have been third in a few more strides. Dangerline quit badly in the final furlong.

Winner—Br. c. by Pirate of Penzance—Romana.

Went to post at 4:14. At post 9 minutes. Start excellent. Won driving and staggering. The next four were doing their best. The Unknown is a cracking good colt and seems at present to be in his best form. Tally rode a good race up to the time the stretch was reached, where he used miserable judgment in drawing his whip and let the colt swerve badly. The Lady is an honest, consistent filly, and ran one of her best races. She was lucky in getting away flying and was about the only starter not interfered with on the first turn. At this point there was a general mix-up and Eva Rice and Florizar were almost thrown over the fence. The former was, perhaps, the best, but after being so badly interfered with Narvaez made up his lost ground too rapidly and rode a poor race generally. Molo is becoming good. Dissolute hardly ran his race; neither did Tuthill, who was none too well ridden.

Winner—Ch. g. by Fonso—Miss Nannie.

Went to post at 4:54. At post 4 minutes. Start good. Won cleverly; second hand ridden; third and fourth were hard at it. Frangible was lucky, well handled and had the speed necessary to win in reserve when Flick called upon him. Hansford did not bleed, had clear sailing, plenty of speed and everything considered did as well as he is capable of doing. Kentucky Babe ran a surprisingly good race. Owensboro had bad racing luck throughout. Lady Meddlesome suffered from bad handling and besides was a trifle short. This was far from being her race and considering the company she was in with her price was entirely too long. Thomas Carey made up ground throughout. Maharajah was in sight passing the half mile ground then quit badly. The same can be said of Microscope.

Winner—B. g. by Blazes—Bettie Prince.

Went to post at 5:25. At post 6 minutes. Start good. Won in a long, hard drive of two; third and fourth were doing their best. Prince Blazes awoke with a sudden start and showed a touch of his best 1899 form. His improvement was almost too sudden to be healthy. Bradford rode the Prince well and waited until the last few strides before he struck him with the whip. Hub Prather also did much better than he did in his last race, and with a stronger boy up could not have lost. He is heavy-headed and Tally could not help him to any great extent when the pinch came. Macey had clear sailing and no complaint could be made about the ride Bergen gave him. The race was always between the first three.
